Description

Lviv. The Complex of the Former Bernardine Monastery

The Bernardine Church and Monastery in Lviv is a sacred building complex formed in the first half of the XVII century. The dominant structure of the monastery is considered to be the church of St. Andrew (now the Church of the UGCC), erected in the first half of the XVII century. It incorporates elements of the Italian renaissance and the northern mannerism.

The Bernardine Monastery has long been an external outpost of the Lviv fortification system. As a defense structure, the monastery was using its own systems of fortifications, and if necessary, defended the eastern borders of the city with flank fire. The monastery was located along the main line of the city defence. Eventually, the high fortress walls of the monastery complex became part of the urban fortifications. To date, only the eastern wall of fortifications remains preserved, as well as the Glynia tower that was later recreated by the Lviv restorers.
